Finding Arcadia

Rainier Valley Historical Society is putting together a book for Arcadia Publishing’s Images of America series. This illustrated history of the valley will make its debut next spring.

To illustrate the history of this highly diverse region, we began by drawing on our own collection of photographs and printed materials, collected over more than 100 years. We then set out to fill gaps by calling on friends and associates, exploring the archives of other organizations, and coaxing community leaders to share photos. Along the way we gathered considerable new information, put new spins on old ideas, and corrected a number of long-held misconceptions.

History has a way of growing and changing. We are indebted to the many individuals and organizations who provided vital images for the book that we did not have in our collections: the Atlantic Street Center, Gloria Cauble, the Collins Family, the David Eskenazi Collection, George Fleming, Alan Humphrey, the Hydroplane and Raceboat Museum, the Kubota Garden Foundation, Chuck Kusak, the Vince Mottola Family, the Mount Baker Community Club, the Museum of History and Industry, Neighborhood House, the O’Brien Family, Martin Patricelli, the Seattle-Rainier Lions Club, the Rainier Chamber of Commerce, James Raisbeck, the Royal Esquires Club, the Sam Smith Family, the Seattle Housing Authority, SouthEast Effective Development (SEED), Bill Young, and the many student photographers of Youth in Focus. Some of these photographs will become a permanent part of our research collection.

Thank to all the volunteers who worked with me to make this book happen.

Rolling Back Through Time

On Saturday, July 16, 2011, hundreds turned out to celebrate the 100th anniversary of Seward Park’s acquisition by the City of Seattle. Time was rolled back as the peninsula – “the loop” – was temporarily open to a parade of antique cars which followed the promenade of walkers dressed in period garb. The antique car show, arranged by Richard Ranhofer, featured a 100-year-old 1911 Baker Electric automobile, voted first place for the People’s Choice Award. Second place went to Franklin graduate Tony Zauer’s 1948 Chevrolet. And what would an event at Seward Park be without a traditional Pie Eating Contest? Or an egg toss, a time-honored activity that spans generations?

Buzz Anderson Volunteer of the Year Award

At RVHS’s annual meeting, held on April 16, 2011, the second annual Buzz Anderson Volunteer of the Year Award was presented to Bernice Sisson for her long years of service supporting the Society. For many years, Bernice held the Board office of Secretary, at the same time devoting almost every Friday morning to updating our archive database, a pursuit she continues to this day. Many thanks to Bernice for all her hard work!

The Tale of the Bell

Sometime after the first Columbia School was built in 1892, a cast steel bell was installed in the tower. When the structure was demolished in 1922, the bell was salvaged and housed in the new school building. In the late 1940s the Pioneers of Columbia City petitioned the school district to let them have the bell. Many of the Pioneers remembered hearing the bell calling them to class. They were granted the right to display the bell at their meetings and to build a frame to hold the bell and display it at the school.

Fifty years later, their successor organization, the Rainier Valley Historical Society, again requested that the bell be donated or loaned to them, particularly as the bell was no longer on display. The request was granted and the bell was moved first to the basement of the Rainier Valley Cultural Center and then to the Society’s new office on Ferdinand Street where it remains today. It is on long-term loan from the Seattle School District.

On a number of occasions, volunteers from the historical society have wrestled the bell onto a pick-up truck and entered it into the Rainier Valley Heritage Parade.

Pictured here, Grover Haynes rings the bell while Tim Burdick drives in the 19th annual Heritage Parade. The bells weigh 179 pounds and rings loud and true.
