Get Together!
The Annual Meeting of the Rainier Valley Historical Society

Saturday, April 16th, we will hold our annual meeting for members and friends. All are invited to this free event – Join us!

The morning’s program includes a special presentation by historians Mikala Woodward and John Hoole on civic activism in the Rainier Valley during the 1970s and beyond. Learn how local folks came together to protect and change their community in the face of opportunism and indifference.

The morning will also feature additions to our collection, a report on our newly reborn oral history program, the Buzz Anderson Volunteer of the Year Award, and some special announcements!

Stay for lunch and to browse in our travelling gift shop and mini-museum!

This year we will meet again at the Lions Club Charles Lamb Memorial Hall, next door to our Ferdinand Street office.

If you have not received your personal invitation to the Annual Meeting, please contact us at 206-723-1663 or rvhsoffice@aol.com or just come on down!

Current members of the historical society are eligible to vote in board elections during the annual meeting.
Welcome Sheila Harvey

RVHS is pleased to welcome Sheila Harvey as our newest Board Member. Sheila has been appointed to fill a vacant board seat; she will be nominated to a 3-year term at this year’s annual meeting.

Sheila Harvey and her husband, Tom, moved to the Lakewood Seward Park neighborhood in 2006 after returning to Seattle from Los Angeles. They are happy to have found a home in this vibrant and diverse Rainier Valley community. Sheila currently serves as Executive Director of the Lakewood Seward Park Community Association, where she manages rentals for the 100-year-old club. She has always been interested in keeping history alive and is looking forward to helping us present a view into the rich history of our community. When not working, she can usually be found being pulled around Seward Park by her two terriers who also love living in such a beautiful place.

Seward Park Turns 100!

2011 marks the 100th anniversary of the City of Seattle’s purchase of Seward Park from private ownership. Local organizations are hosting centennial events throughout the year to celebrate this milestone.

In Their Own Words

Last fall we were able to reactivate our dormant oral history program. Thanks to board members Nancy Dulaney, Karen O’Brien, and Teresa Anderson, we were able to obtain taped interviews with long-time valley residents Martin and Rosemary Byrne and Don Bearwood. In addition, I interviewed nonagenarian Lila Bulen in her Mount Baker home.

These three interviews join dozens of others obtained over the last two decades, including “Food Stories” which celebrates traditions of the many immigrant groups in the valley.

All interviews are on hand for researchers: in some cases, typed transcripts are available. For a complete list of our oral history program, visit our website.

Days Gone By:
Hillman City's Irish Heritage – Marty Byrne

Note: In the fall of 2010, as part of the RVHS Oral History Program, Martin James Byrne was interviewed by Nancy Dulaney. The following article is based on information collected during those visits.

Martin and Dorothy Byrne have lived on Morgan Street since 1952, when they moved from an apartment building on Queen Anne hill. They married in June of 1945, took their honeymoon on the Kalakala to Victoria, and drove on to Nanaimo and Vancouver. They loaded up on an extra 15 gallons of gas before they returned to Seattle where war years rationing ruled.

But Martin was no stranger to Rainier Valley. He had been born on the kitchen table of a little house in Hillman City in 1914! – the oldest child of Martin Thomas and Mary Agnes Byrne and of Irish ancestry on both sides.

Martin’s father built a plumbing shop on Rainier Avenue at Mead Street in 1919. Martin recalls it was a big outfit employing seven plumbers and utilized a tractor to carry tools. His father drove a Model T. For a number of years business was good as families had their first indoor plumbing installed.

But Martin recalls that, later, “Work got pretty scarce. My dad, he was great at those days for trading. He put the plumbing in offices and repaired the plumbing equipment for dentists. The dentist would pay us by having our teeth repaired for nothing. There was a lot of trading and bartering in those days.”

After two years at St. Mary’s Catholic School, Martin attended St. Edward School in Hillman City. In 1932 he graduated from O’Dea High School wearing a tuxedo. He is especially proud of a report card from St. Edward – straight As. When he wasn’t busy studying, Martin and his brothers often stopped by the pool hall their Uncle Nick ran in Hillman City where he always had a Hershey chocolate bar with almonds for the boys.

When the fire bell rang at Fire Station #28 on Orcas Street, the firefighters slid down the pole. The horses were trained to run right into position, and the harnesses hanging above would drop on. Martin says, “Everybody had their job to do. You’d see them coming around the corner at Orcas heading out to the fire. The streets were all brick on end, paved brick. Steel plates were along the wagon wheels. The horses had steel hooves too. And nothing but sparks as they wheeled around the corner! And bells clanging! And the firemen running behind the fire engine! “

At age 18 Martin lifeguarded at the Aki Natatorium where Olympic medalist Helene Madison trained. Then he was at the Frye meat-packing plant on Airport Way for about three years on the loading floor where the butchered beef was shipped uptown for Seattle shoppers.

Finally Martin landed a job as an apprentice shipfitter at Puget Sound Bridge & Dredge after the bombing of Pearl Harbor. The industry transitioned from repairing wooden merchant ships to building steel war ships, ferries, ice breakers and oil tankers over the years. Martin retired from Todd Shipyards at 70. When he first started he made about $50 a week thanks to the boilermakers union; groceries took $15 of that according to Dorothy.

For recreation, Martin enjoyed spending time at Empire Bowling Alley and he has the trophies to prove it. Or you might have found Dorothy and Martin dancing on the freshly waxed pecan wood floors at the Genesee Community Hall which his cousin Frank Byrne managed for many years. But much of Martin’s time was spent outdoors – camping at Lake Wilderness, playing horseshoes and baseball, salmon fishing – “Fishing was good in those days. Fish would jump right out of Lake Washington.”

Martin and Dorothy’s five children – Maureen (deceased), Kathleen, Rosemary, Martin G., and Stephen – followed in their father’s footsteps in many ways, enjoying Rainier Valley’s signature celebrations and pastimes including Seafair parades and hydroplane races, baseball at Sick’s Stadium, and adventures in “rabbitland.”

On February 10, 2011, at 96, Martin Byrne passed away at his home with his wife, Dorothy, by his side.

Many thanks to Rosemary Byrne for contacting RVHS and making this oral history possible.

REPORT FROM THE COLLECTION

Our big collections news is that we have completed the move of our archival collection to a new, larger room at the old Columbia School (now Torah Day School). We will continue to have displays in the lower level of the Rainier Valley Cultural Center.

Our thanks to both Torah Day School and the Cultural Center for accommodating us. And special thanks to the many volunteers who helped with the move and with organizing the collection in its new space!

Thanks also to The Byrne Family, Atlantic Street Center, Wellspring Family Services, and Neighborhood House for lending us photographs for use in our work.

Additions to Archives
